No Extra Buckeyes In The Teapot

It had been no secret for two years that Ohio's financial surplus was approaching the vanishing point. It was put into the state's building program.

James Maloon, the DiSalle administration's budget director, says the surplus will disappear by the end of next June. At that time there will be no more extra buckeyes hidden in the teapot.

All the money that had been carried over from year to year and biennium to biennium, thanks to the productivity of the Ohio sales tax in its lush periods, will have been committed.

With due allowance for the political advantage of making this known in advance to cool off some of the hot ideas of the incoming assemblymen and with allowance for the strategy of underestimating revenue while overestimating outgo, to maintain a balance, the prospect is that Gov.-elect DiSalle will have to worry about putting more buckeyes in the teapot. Only a miracle could spare him the headache of figuring out how to boost Ohio's income. The miracle would be a voluntary letup in legislative pressure to spend more money.

Yet, though Ohioans know the pressure will be on for more spending and more taxes, they are reasonably certain that the new General Assembly with its Democratic majorites and the new Democratic governor have the upper hand in Columbus.

The first 1959 seed catalog and my first touch of the flu have arrived simultaneously. It would be nice to report that they cancel each other, or that the wistful hopes inspired by the catalog blank out

Strikes Raise Questions

By James Marlow

But Any Ban Again Appears To Be Unlikely

The rash of 1958's year-end strikes overshadowed the fact that the overwhelming majority of labor-management negotiations last year ended peacefully.

But those strikes which immediately and directly affect the public, such as those against airlines and New York newspapers, raise

Can the public be protected against a repetition? Can such strikes be banned? What will Congress do?

No federal law forbids such strikes. Congress rejected the principle of a strike ban when it fashioned the Taft-Hartley Act in 1947. It's unlikely to change its mind in 1959 as a result of what happened in 1958.

Public inconvenience - last year only small segments of the public were affected - has to be balanced against the freedom of workers to strike and of employers to shut their plants and freedom for both to settle their own

A change in congressional thinking would appear more probable if the time came when a strike damaged the nation as a whole so badly that it seemed necessary to prevent a repetition in order to avoid disaster.

tainly would not forbid strikes generally but aim, instead, at key industries broadly affecting the public. Likely targets: such public utilities as railroads, airlines, telephones, buses, electric power. But how could there be a fair settlement in those fields if labor, to enforce its demands, could not strike and management, to put pressure on a union, could not shut down its plant?

To try to be fair to both sides, Congress probably would require compulsory arbitration. An outsider would be appointed to listen to both sides and then give a decision binding on both. Organized labor as a whole, treasuring its freedom to strike for what it demands, is against

WASHINGTON ably would oppose compulsory arbitration, too. Congress itself turned down the idea of compulsory arbitration when it was passing the Taft-Hartley Act. So did one of the law's authors, the late Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio. There are two major labor laws: the Railway Labor Act, covering railroads and airlines; and Taft-

Hartley, covering most other interstate business and industry. The Railway Act does not forbid a strike but has built-in machinery for delaying one while efforts are made to get a settlement. It's the same with Taft-

At year's end no one seemed more pleased at the way labor and management got along in 1958 than Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

His department put out a statement this week which said in 1958 was one of the best years on record. The number of man-days lost through strike idleness was lower than any postwar year except 1957.

Mitchell praised what he called Even then Congress almost cer- the "statesmanship" and maturity of labor and management" for their record in collective bargaining in 1958.

A number of states have laws whose purpose is to prevent or forbid strikes in public utilities. But the constitutionality of these laws has been questionable ever since 1951.

That year the Supreme Court knocked down a Wisconsin law aimed at preventing a public utility strike. What the court said in effect was that the Taft-Hartley Act does not forbid such a strike; therefore, the Wisconsin law was in conflict with federal law and could not stand.

Every year since 1951 proposals have been made in Congress to ban strikes in public utilities. compulsory arbitration which They got nowhere. They will be could force it to accept what it offered again this year and apdid no want. Management prob- pear likely to face the same fate,

Man has come to think of peace as a hiatus between wars. A period of time when other nations or other people, by force or coercion, are driven into agreement with him, admission of his power and submission to his will. That is not real peace.

Marilyn Lewis Exchanges Vows With Kenneth O'Hara To U.S. Tongue

Miss Marilyn Sue Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lewis of Cleveland, became the bride of Kenneth Gene O'Hara, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul O'Hara, 203 Maplewood Ave., in a ceremony at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Collinwood Christian Church.

The double-ring ceremony was performed before an altar banked with palms, candelabra and white gladioli by the Rev. Newton Kelly, Mrs. Nicholas Dranbarban, known professionally as Sali Lynn, sang "O, Promise Me," "I Love You Truly" and "Devotion" preceding and "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a fulllength gown of peau de soie and silk illusion was held in place by a clip-on headband. She carried a Her Rites Held In Collinwood. Announcement has been made white Bible topped with an ar-

Results In Tragedy

SAN CARLOS, Ariz, (AP) - A senseless New Year's Day prank backfired into tragedy when a dynamite explosion killed two persons, hospitalized eight others and splintered a one-room house.

Mike Windham, criminal investigator for the Indian Bureau, said partygoers at a San Carlos Reservation wooden frame house were tossing lighted dynamite sticks out the door. He gave this account:

Deb Hinton, 27, a miner, brought home some dynamite from a nearby mine. A holiday group of 10 Indians jammed Hinton's small house for a party. After midnight, they started tossing the dynamite. One of the lighted sticks dropped into a box containing other sticks. setting off the blast.

Hinton and his sister, Mrs. Nona Peaches, 17, were killed. Five of the injured were in critical condition. Several had limbs blown off or so badly mangled they had to be amputated. All were blinded, at least temporarily. Hospitalized were:

The dead man's brother, Sam; his wife, Gloria, 26; a sister, Manuelita, 19; Sam Hinton's wife, Frieda, and their unidentified infant child, sex unknown; Norbert Dennis and McGillis Mallow.

South Picked Over North In Senior Bowl

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) -A proven scoring combination helped establish the South as a touchdown favorite in Saturday's Senior Bowl football game.

In giving Coach Paul Brown's squad the edge, the oddsmakers remembered last weekend's North-South Shrine Bowl game at Miami when Buddy Humphrey of Baylor threw three scoring passes to Mississippi State's Billy Stacy. Humphrey also tossed two other touchdown aerials in the South's 49-20 victory in that game. He was the nation's top collegiate passer this season with 1,316 yards on 112 completions in 195

Humphrey and Stacy will be in Brown's offensive backfield Saturday and it'll be a big surprise if they don't try to make plenty of yardage through the air.

Iowa, Louisiana State And Oklahoma Post Bowl Victories

TCU And Air Academy Play Scoreless Tie

By JACK CLARY

Associated Press Sports Writer Louisiana State the national football champion probably will get a strong argument over the honor from second place Iowa today in the wake of the Sugar and Rose Bowl games.

Both teams were heavily favored-LSU by 15 points over Clemson in the Sugar Bowl and Iowa by 18 over California, in the Rose Bowl. Only Iowa proved the oddsmakers correct.

The Hawkeyes scored in every period to overwhelm California, the Pacific Coast Conference king, 38-12. LSU had to call on Coach Paul Dietzel to call the play that defeated Clemson 7-0.

Oklahoma did as expected and defeated dogged Syracuse 21-6 in the Orange Bowl. Air Force pulled a mild upset in playing Southwest Conference champion Texas Christian to a 0-0 tie in a battle of fumbles and mistakes in the Cotton Bowl. Prairie View A&M wallopped Langston 34-8 in the Prairie View Bowl.

Iowa was runnerup to the Bayou Bengals in the final Associated Press poll that settled the national championship. But the Big Ten champs were not expected to have as easy a time as they did against an outweighed, outmaneuvered

On the other hand, LSU, with Its White, Go and Chinese Bandits three-team varsity specialists, was expected to have some trouble from a hefty Clemson line, but by sheer weight of numbers, were supposed to have things their way in the end.

The Clemson line didn't weaken. A broken right hand by LSU quarterback Warren Rabb on the third play of the game put him out for the second half. These two factors weighed heavily in forcing Dietzel to revamp his offensive plans-and hope.

The wisp of hope came in the third period when Clemson center Paul Snyder got a firmer grip on snap-back to punter Bill Mathis. The ball sailed wildly and bounced It was recovered by LSU tackle Duane Leopard on the Clemson 11.

Two plays gained only one yard and on third down All America halfback Billy Cannon, the game's most valuable player, started wide, spotted end Mickey Mangham and hit him with a pass for the score. Cannon kicked the ex-

Dietzel admitted afterward that he called the scoring play "because Clemson was putting so much pressure on our quarterbacks when they went back to pass that I figured a halfback run-pass option would take more time." John Rigney, club vice president whose wife, Dorothy, is the majority stockholder, said Thursday night: "It is not true that the sale has been made. Negotiations still are going on."

Roy Egan, Comiskey attorney and a member of the board of directors, also denied completion of the sale.

"If anybody should know i would be me," he said. "Completion of such a sale has not been made and I don't know if it ever will be."

Veeck, former head of groups who owned the Cleveland Indians and old St. Louis Browns, declined to comment.

The Tribune said formal announcement is being held up pending further negotiations with Vice President Charles Comiskey, minority stockholder who has been bidding for the shares of his sister, Mrs. Rigney.

"Veeck's long range plans, was learned, include the likelihood of selling Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox since 1910, and the possibility of playing in Soldier Field or elsewhere," the Tribune added.
